On the Trump Administration Announcement to Withdraw from Talks with California on Cleaner Cars

Statement of Paul J. Miller, Executive Director Northeast States for Coordinated Air Use Management (NESCAUM)

February 21, 2019

Given the unmistakable evidence that impacts from a changing climate are worsening – from record-breaking heat waves, to mega-forest fires, to extreme hurricanes – walking back from what is effectively the federal government’s biggest climate mitigation program poses a real threat to public health and welfare.

In spite of the federal government’s actions today, our states will continue to use every tool in the toolbox to do more, not less, to address harmful emissions from cars and trucks.
